

CONTENTS

Author's acknowledgments

It was Philip Cooper, then of Laurence King Publishing, who saw the need for a new history of modern architecture and was kind enough to commission me to write it.

Robert Harbison made many useful comments on a draft of the text, but more importantly set an example of excellence in his teaching, writing and thinking over more than 20 years. Brian Stater also commented usefully on the text and was stalwart in his support and encouragement. What I know about the theory and practice of history is mainly due to my teachers, Adrian Forty and Mark Swenarton, and before them the late Dalibor Vesely. Many journalistic and teaching colleagues helped to shape my view of modern architecture, among them Florian Beigel, John Burrell, Adam Caruso, Dan Cruickshank, Frances Holliss, Joe Kerr, Helen Mallinson, the late Martin Pawley, Peter St John, Helen Thomas and generations of students who repeatedly refreshed my thinking. Jonathan Wadman edited the text with great sensitivity and the staff at Laurence King were kind and tolerant as well as professional.

Finally I would like to thank my partner, Sue Wight, for her unfailing patience, moral support and practical suggestions.

	Introduction	6
1	Art Nouveau and Adolf Loos 1881–1930	10
2	Houses 1891–1911	24
3	National Romanticism, the New Tradition and the Beaux-Arts 1893–1923	36
4	Steel and Concrete: Pioneers and Visionaries 1891–1923	50
5	Factories 1902–1942	60
6	Expressionism 1914–1941	72
7	Dutch Modernism 1915–1931	84
8	German Modernism 1919–1933	96
9	Le Corbusier Part 1 1906–1932	110
10	Mies van der Rohe in Germany 1907–1938	124
11	Russian Constructivism 1917–1936	136
12	Wright, Schindler and Neutra 1911–1938	148
13	Art Deco and the Skyscraper 1925–1939	160
14	Modern Classicism 1923–1942	174
15	Modernism in the USA 1932–1972	192
16	Domes, Shells and Tents 1952–1973	208
17	Le Corbusier Part 2 1932–1965	224
18	Alvar Aalto and Hans Scharoun 1924–1971	238
19	Mass Housing 1949–1968	252
20	Latin American Modernism 1932–1982	262
21	Brutalism 1954–1977	276
22	Louis Kahn – Monumental Modernism 1953–1982	292
23	'Non-Western' Influences 1937–1991	302
24	Postmodernism 1964–1990	314
25	Neo-Rationalism 1967–1991	330
26	High Tech 1967–1991	344
27	Japan 1945–2000	362
28	Deconstructivism 1982–1995	378
29	Rem Koolhaas and OMA 1991–2004	394
30	'The Architecture of the Well-Tempered Environment' Revisited 1973–2007	406
31	'Context' and 'Materiality' 1963–2012	420
32	Digital Futures 1994–2012	440
33	China 1911–2012	458
	Notes	478
	Bibliography	480
	Index	485
	Picture credits	498